

COVID-19 Update 3/18/20 6:51 pm

There are now 13 cases of COVID-19 in Ventura County. 1 was confirmed by the CDC and 12 were presumptive. As of today we will not be reporting presumptive positive cases. They will be counted as positive cases. The CDC lab will no longer be providing confirmation. The local lab will provide the final results.

Cases include travel related, community transmission, person to person and those under investigation.

Travel related: Means the person was exposed while traveling.

Community transmission: Means there is no known point of exposure.

Person to person: Means someone was exposed by someone they are close to that was already positive.

In this case it was the spouse of someone that already tested positive.

Under investigation means they are determining if the case falls under the three previous categories.
